Notes

Note 1: Thomas Henley's name appears on a Patent issued to Thomas Woodson, Mary Linton, Rice Jones, Bridgett Freeman and Christopher Garlinton. (Locust Neck) Lower Norfolk or Princess Ann in Virginia records in the early 1630's. No descendants of John or Edward were found in sources used in these papers.

Note 2: In a document #1, furnished by Louie Henley, Lenoir City, Tennessee, January 2006, authored by James T. Sales, Aud of Public accounts Commonwealth of Va, May 25th 1926, Richmond, VA, details one version of the Henley's in America and a typed document #2, unauthored and undated, details another version. I, Ernest E. Carrick, 6111 Fairfield Drive, Huntsville, AL 35811, 256-852-6180, Jan 2000, have attempted to compare and merge as one to no avail. So, the following info is provided for your information:

"A true copy" "Henley" This family of England peerage; possied estates in the following towns and Shires of England. unreadable, Haunts, Suffolk, Warrich and Cox. This family Coat of Arms are elaboate with much insignids, and have as a motto "Si Gil Prudisitia" and can claim "high distnston". The earliest records I have of a Henley in Virginia is John Henley in 1650. ("Early Va Emigrants by J. Easet) Note: writting is extremely had to read. Reginold Henley, The Progenitor of the Virginia Henleys is a son of Hezakiah Henley of England and (unreadable) in Virginiin1661, and had settled on an (unreadable) James City Co. in 1667. He married, a Miss Susan Teow___(unreadable) and from records had the following issue. Robert, Leonard and Mary". (From this place on, both documents seem to track ok).

Document #2: "A true copy" "Decendants of Thomas Henley, Born about 1609 in England. Thomas Henley' name appeares on a patent issued to Thomas Woodson, Mary Linton, Rice Jones, Bridgett Freeman and Christopher Garlinton. (Locust Neck) Lower Norfolk or Princess Ann in Virginia records in theearly 1630's. No descendants of John or Edward were found in sources used in these papers. Thomas Henley married Eliza Reynolds about 1633. Elilza the daughter of Elijah Reynolds, who came to Virginia in 1616 aboard to ship "God Speed". Eliza was born in Virginia, records list her as a widow, forty one years old in 1658. Thomas and Eliza Henley had one son born about 1634/1635 and died in 1692, his name was Reynolds Henley. Reynolds Henley married Elizabeth Keeling, daughter of Leonard Keeling about 1654/1655. Reynolds and Elizabeth had three children Leonard, Robert, Mary." (From heron these two documents seem to track.

Notes

My first trip to Tracy City - By Escoe Henley.

I was my good fortune to have been born in Grundy County Tennessee in the home of my grandparents, James Campbell Henley and Estella Parks Henley. We lived the first nine years of my life on my grandfathers' farm, which was about a mile from the foot of the mountain below Monteagle, along what is now Hi-Way 41. The road at that time was a dirt track and when it came to the creek there was no bridge. Traffic crossed the creek by going through the shallow water. This presented no problem since almost all the traffic was horse drawn and horses don't seem to mind getting their feet wet.

My grandfather had a brother, Samuel Alexander Henley. He along with his wife Angeline Sartain Henley, had moved to Tracy City. I believe they both taught school there. About 1924 my grandfather heard that his brother was seriously injured. A deranged drunk had given him a severe beating and locked him in a stable with a wild horse, thinking the horse would finish him off. Fortunately the horse didn't harm him but the beating left him in serious condition. My grandfather was worried about his brother and asked my father to go see about him. My parents, with me and my baby sister, set out in a buggy for Tracy City to see uncle Sam. We forded the creek, turned left, passed Wonder Cave and up the old road through Monteagle to Tracy. The trip was too long to return the same day. It took most of the day to get there so we had to spend the night.

After visiting with uncle Sam for a while we went to a silent movie at the Dixie Theater; the first movie any of us had seen. The theater was not like any other I have ever seen. It consisted of an open room with the projectionist sitting near the back and the audience seated in a little group in cane bottom straight chairs. As time passed, the theater became must too cold for comfort. I think the only heat was from portable kerosene heaters, which the more affluent guests could rent for a small fee. I was getting sleepy and my sister was becoming Winey when we departed and walked back to Uncle Sams's a distance of three or four blocks.

The next morning I walked into the back yard and observed a girl who appeared to be a couple of years older than me. She was sitting in the nicest little wagon with a spring seat. A goat was hitched to the wagon and a grown person was trying to persuade the goat to pull the wagon, without much success. For years I wondered who was that girl with the little wagon.

Then in 1999 I received an invitation from the Grundy County Historical Society to the grand opening of their new enlarged "Root Cellar". While there I called Mrs. Polly Baggenstoss, whom I had heard was in some way related. I told her about my trip and the girl with the wagon. To my surprise, she said "That was me". She is Uncle Sam's granddaughter. I never knew that before.

Uncle Sam recovered and lived until 1928 when, at Sanders Crossing, his horse was struck by a Greyhound bus and he was killed. He was 77 years of age.

Notes

Note 1: 1st marriage to Nannie Moran ended in the death of Nannie at the birth of their first child which also died.
Note 2: Mr. Henley's Country Store, paper written by Ernest E. Carrick in 1980 for a college writing course from Athens State College, Athens, AL. "When I was a youngster growing up in Tracy City, Tennessee, Mr. Henley's Country Store was the center of the community: it was the place everyone read their mail, it was the information and entertainment center, and it was also the election center for the Grundy County District.

The United States Post Office was just across the street from Mr. Henley's Country Store. When mail arrived, usually once or twice a week, all the folks would come over to the store to read their mail or have their mail read to them. Those who did not receive mail would share the excitement with those who did. News would pass from one to another; such as John Crabtree's son made it big in Nashville, he's selling shoes; now has a son; or Junior Van Houser is still in Nashville getting his education. When the Sears Roebuck Catalog arrived from the mail order house in Atlanta, the ladies would all gather around the big long counted to mull over the latest fashions. Those ladies would talk and chatter like a bunch of old mother hens. The comments they made regarding the fashions are still very vivid to me; look at that dress, it's nearly up to the knees, look at those new bloomers, it's just plain sinful to put those things in a catalog. The men were just as bad, arguing the pro's and con's of each shotgun, of each rifle, and of each piece of new farm equipment.

Mr. Henley had an old Philco radio that he played from morning until night. Some of the men would sit around the big warm morning stove with their feet propped up on a dynamite case playing checkers, chewing away on Apple or Days Work chewing tobacco, spitting the four or five feet to the stove box. The ladies would sit around on can-back chairs or wooden kegs, dipping Garret's snuff, spitting in a spittoon. Mr. Henley would tune in to WSM, Nashville, to catch Roy Acuff and The Smokey Mountain Boys.

The country store was the local election and political headquarters for both Republicans and Democrats. The men would gather to discuss local, county, and state candidates that were running would always come to the country store to meet and talk to all the voters. The Republicans came and brought all their fancy entertainers and gave long-winded speeches that no one understood or really cared about. The Democrats did not need to come, because everyone would vote for them anyway.

The old country store holds many a memory. I used to sit on the porch eating a big dill pickle from the huge barrel, or cheese and crackers, or sweets from all the different jars, and dream of growing up so that I could become a part of the various things that happened at Mr. Henley's County Store."

Note 3: Looking back on this paper I wrote and after many months of talking to family members I offer these memories of this store: Upon entering the front of the store, the right side was all the bolts of cloths, shoes, dresses, shirts etc; the left side was all of the caned goods, hardware, mining supplies etc; the back of the store was the meat department. The back door was used as both an entrance and exit for taking supplies out to deliver to their customers. My dad, Charlie Alfred Carrick drove the old Dodge pickup truck to deliver. I rode that old truck with my dad all over Tracy, Hoot, Buffalo, Pryer Ridge, Orange Hill, White City and many more place. As each order was filled, a charge ticket was made in a book similar to the books used by restruants today to write your order on. Each book had black carbon paper so that the merchant had his copy and a copy to go to the customer. Mr. Henley had a big cabinet with many rows for each of the books. I always wondered if he ever got paid for all those books of merchandise that he had delivered. I bet he did not.

The old country store holds many a memory. I used to sit on the porch eating a big dill pickle from the huge barrel, or cheese and crackers, or sweets from all the different jars, and dream of growing up so that I could become a part of the various things that happened at Mr. Henley's County Store."

Note 3: Looking back on this paper I wrote and after many months of talking to family members I offer these memories of this store: Upon entering the front of the store, the right side was all the bolts of cloths, shoes, dresses, shirts etc; the left side was all of the caned goods, hardware, mining supplies etc; the back of the store was the meat department. The back door was used as both an entrance and exit for taking supplies out to deliver to their customers. My dad, Charlie Alfred Carrick drove the old Dodge pickup truck to deliver. I rode that old truck with my dad all over Tracy, Hoot, Buffalo, Pryer Ridge, Orange Hill, White City and many more place. As each order was filled, a charge ticket was made in a book similar to the books used by restruants today to write your order on. Each book had black carbon paper so that the merchant had his copy and a copy to go to the customer. Mr. Henley had a big cabinet with many rows for each of the books. I always wondered if he ever got paid for all those books of merchandise that he had delivered. I bet he did not.
